G. N., N. P. Prepare Supplemental Merger Plea

ARE TO COMPLY WITH ORDER TO GIVE UP C. B. & Q.

NORTHERN ROADS HAVE ASKED I. C. C. NOT TO REOPEN THE CASE

ILLINOIS JOINS MINNESOTA STAT-ING INTERESTS OF EMPLOYEES NOT CONSIDERED

Washington, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—The Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads today notified the interstate commerce commission they were preparing a supplemental merger application to comply with the commission's requirements that they give up the Burlington.

The roads asked the commission not to reopen the case, which has been requested in several petitions, since they were filing the supplemental application.

The two roads served notice simultaneously with the filing of another petition for reopening the case today. This came by filing of Illinois commerce commission which subscribed to the brief of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission. The latter contended that the interests of employees of the two roads had not been considered the proposed merger.

The merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific was approved by the commission some time ago on the condition that they dispose of the Burlington, owned jointly by them. In their petition today, the two roads declared a reopening of the consolidation proceedings at this time "would be premature and would serve no useful purpose, since the commission has withheld issuance pending the submission by the applicants of a supplemental plan complying with the commission's requirements."

The carriers suggested that when the revised application has been filed with the commission hearings held at which interveners may be heard.

In replying to the allegations of those who have opposed the merger, the carriers denied that employees of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads were not given an opportunity to be heard in the consolidation proceedings. The carriers held that the employees had been heard and that the commission had "taken a large amount of evidence as to the effect of the proposed unification upon employees as well as upon business interests."

The roads also denied the public was not sufficiently notified in advance of the consolidation.

The Illinois commission complaint today was the fifth to be received recently from similar state agencies in the affected territory. The Great Northern and Northern Pacific notified the commission formally some time ago they were planning to file a supplementary application.

The approval of the merger drew criticism in congress, particularly from northwestern members, and Chairman Couzens of the senate interstate commerce committee introduced a resolution to hold all mergers in abeyance until his committee had made an investigation.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Definite action on the interstate commerce commission's proposal for consolidation of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific probably will go over until the return of Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, who is now in Russia, it was said in railroad circles today. Charles Donnelly, the Northern Pacific president, today did not comment on the Northern's statement that a new petition would be filed with the commission.

WOOD ALCOHOL DRINKING PARTY

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—One San Quentin prisoner was poisoned and two are believed to be dying as the result of a wood alcohol drinking party staged in the prison print shop Sunday night, it was learned today.

The dead man is Charles Brown, 30, San Francisco, editor of the Bulletin, the prison's monthly magazine.

FIRE HAZARDS WITH GUSHER IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Fire hazards accompanying oil and gas gushers from a wild oil gusher in the city limits endangered life and property here today. Dryness caused by the drought caused added fears.

The gusher, brought in under the promoting of C. C. Julian, former figure in the defunct Julian Petroleum company of the west coast, developed a leak on its collar and blew wild late today.

Emergency crews were endeavoring to stop its perilous flow by pouring cement into the hole today.

CREEK INDIANS RETREAT FROM FOREST FIRES

The Pas, Man., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Raging forest fires swept down on the Cedar Lake Indian reservation, 50 miles southeast of here, today sending 150 Creek Indians in retreat as flames menaced their wigwams.

Rangers vainly combatted the flames which entered the reservation forests from the southwest today. While braves joined the fire-fighting forces, Indian squaws and children hurriedly dismantled teepees and wigwams and fled to the north.

Three log huts of the Indian colony had already been destroyed and rangers feared the entire settlement would be burned to the ground.

CHARGE 3 MEN WITH CONSPIRACY TO ASSASSINATE

SHERIFF CAHOON OF JACKSONVILLE, FLA., TO SWEAR OUT WARRANTS

DECLARES TRIO SOUGHT TO KILL GOVERNOR DOYLE E. CARLTON

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Sheriff W. B. Cahoon of Duval county told the United Press he expected to swear out warrants today against three men, charging conspiracy to procure the assassination of Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida.

The men are Fred O. Eberhardt, editor and publisher of the Florida State News, Tallahassee; and Frank Ralls and Henry Halsema of Jacksonville. All three were arrested Saturday and held without bond.

Sheriff Cahoon promised sensational developments in the case soon, but declined to discuss it further than to say the warrants would be sworn out before a local justice of the peace today.

Eberhardt and Ralls were arrested in their room at a Jacksonville hotel. Halsema was apprehended at his home. An additional charge of violation of the prohibition law will be placed against Halsema, the sheriff said, adding that 40 gallons of liquor were discovered at his home.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 18.—Although the grave charge of conspiracy against the life of Gov. Doyle E. Carlton was made in warrants sworn out today against three men, arrangements were made for their release under $500 bond each. The three are Fred Eberhardt, editor and publisher of the Florida State News of Tallahassee, and Frank Ralls and Henry Halsema of Jacksonville.

Sheriff W. B. Cahoon, who arrested the men Saturday, placed them in jail and held them without bond, swore out warrants against them today. Ion L. Farris, attorney for Eberhardt, said an agreement had been made for their release under $500 bond pending a preliminary hearing later this week.

"I have talked with my client, but he does not know the nature of the evidence against them," the attorney said. "He denied the report that he had made an attempt to get control of the east coast liquor racket, kill Carlton and blame the affair on Al Capone's gangsters."

Although Eberhardt is said to have been talking over long distance telephone to Vincent Giblin, Miami attorney for Capone, at the time of his arrest, Farris said the publisher denied intimacy with members of the Capone group.

Eberhardt has waged a strong fight in his paper against the Carlton administration and has attacked alleged gambling interests said to exist in the state. The attorney said he could see no motive for a conspiracy to assassinate the governor.

Under the Florida law conspiracy against life is a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of 12 months' imprisonment and a fine of $500.

VILLARD MAY COME TO MINNESOTA FOR FALL CAMPAIGN

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, may come to Minnesota this fall to speak for the farmer-labor party candidates, word received here today from the League for Independent Political Action in New York indicated.

The league announced it had officially endorsed the Minnesota farmer-labor party and its candidates in the fall elections.

John Dewey, philosopher and Columbia university professor, and Kirby Page, pacifist leader, also may visit the state to speak in behalf of the farmer-labor party.

GANGSTER BURIED AFTER A SECRET FUNERAL SUNDAY

NO EXPENSIVE CASKET, FLORAL DECORATIONS, HUGE CROWD AT SILBERMAN RITES

DOZEN CARS FOLLOW BODY TO MINNEAPOLIS RUSSIAN CEMETERY

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Operatives of the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension were searching update communities today for traces of gangster hideaways.

With half a dozen definite clues that Harry Silberman, who was shot down near the Wildwood Amusement Park Wednesday night with two companions, had paraded as a wealthy "man about town" in central Minnesota, investigators were hoping to find a solution of why the three were killed.

General W. F. Rhinow, chief of the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, and his men have data that Silberman lived in St. Cloud on frequent long visits, kept a bank account under his own name at Monticello, kept his automobile at a Big Lake, Minn., garage, and was reported to have maintained a resort at Detroit Lakes.

Instead of the typical gangster's funeral with expensive casket, floral decorations and huge crowds, Silberman was buried yesterday after a secret funeral at undertaking parlors. While curious throngs milled about the home of his brother here, funeral services were held at the undertaker's chapel. Some dozen cars followed the body to the Russian cemetery. None but those intimates who had been informed attended the services. After the body had been lowered into the ground, the curiosity seekers at Silberman's brother's home were told the gangster had been buried.

SURPASS BY 93 HOURS HUNTER BROTHERS' RECORD

OIL SPLASHED OUT OVER CABIN WINDOWS, MAGNETO SHORT CIRCUITED

EXPECTED FINANCIAL REWARDS OF $200,000 FAIL TO MATERIALIZE

By LELAND L. CHESLEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine were the world's champion refueling endurance fliers today, but both were chagrined that $200,000 hadn't materialized from their effort.

By making a safe landing in the monoplane "The Greater St. Louis" at 6:39:30 A. M. CST. yesterday after a flight of 647 hours, the fliers were assured of the record laurels. They had surpassed by more than 93 hours the time of the Hunter brothers' flight.

Both blamed a crack in the motor crankcase for their descent. Oil splashed out over the cabin windows and motor and soaked into the magneto, short circuiting it, Jackson said.

William Pickers, their promotion manager, said the fliers would have brought the plane down yesterday "anyway, even if the motor hadn't cracked" because of their feeling over the size of financial rewards. Jackson and O'Brine denied, however, that the question of money entered into the matter.

But the rainbow the two saw when they went aloft July 21 had a bucket at the end with $200,000, they hoped. Still there were contracts, either signed or offered, totalling $39,000 for advertising, movie talks, and state fair appearances.

The orange and yellow monoplane which had been in the air 27 days, started faltering several hours before the landing, the fliers said. Finally at 6:15 A. M. they were forced to message that a landing was imminent.

The little plane swung low over the far end of the field. O'Brine, who was piloting it, shut the motor off and the wheels of the craft touched the ground for the first time this month.

A crowd of 800 stood about Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. O'Brine, wives of the pilots, were first at the cabin door, however. Jackson stepped out, a neat figure in white coveralls. He laughed and pulled O'Brine out after him.

"O'Brine" had on an oil splattered blue shirt and old blue trousers.

The two embraced their wives. Neither appeared tired from the long flight, and their deafness wore off in a few minutes.

"We had a nice time," O'Brine said in commenting on the flight. "Our greatest kick was when we passed the Hunter boys' mark. It sure seems funny to be walking on the ground again."

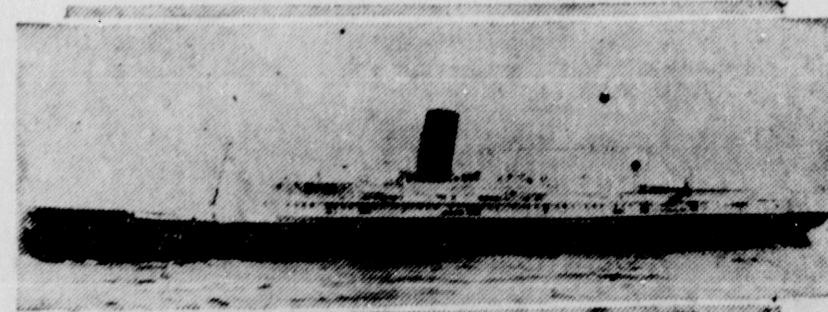

The official time of the flight was announced as 647 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds. It was estimated the plane had flown 42,000 miles, and the propeller revolved 32,000,000 times. More than 7,500 gallons of gasoline were consumed, and 147 refueling contacts made by the plane "Patsy Ann."

A contract has been signed for appearance of the fliers and their plane at the Minnesota state fair.

SHIP SINKS IN PACIFIC

The Royal Mail liner Tahiti, which left San Francisco Tuesday with approximately 300 persons on board, was abandoned yesterday after a two days' fight with heavy seas. The ship grew water-logged when it broke a propeller shaft. All passengers and crew were saved.

DISABLED SHIP POUNDED BY SEAS FOR MANY HOURS

VENTURA SPEEDED TO RESCUE, COMPLETES HEROIC MISSION

WATER Poured INTO TAHITI'S HOLD TWO DAYS SINCE LOSING PROPELLOR

London, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—An Exchange Telegram dispatch from Wellington, N. Z., today said the steamship Tahiti, abandoned in the South Pacific, sank this afternoon.

The Tahiti sank at 4:30 P. M. Rarotonga time, a message to Lloyds from Wellington, N. Z., stated.

Pago Pago, Samoa, Aug. 18.—The steamship Tahiti, on which 300 persons sailed gaily northward from Wellington for San Francisco six days ago, rolled under a heavy swell in the South Pacific today, shattered and abandoned after rescue of her passengers and crew.

Aboard the Matson steamer Ventura, the 173 adult passengers and two infants who sailed on the Tahiti of the Union Steamship Company were safe after the disabled and water-filled ship was pounded by a strong-running sea for many hours.

The Ventura, speeding from the scene of the rescue toward Pago, had ended another heroic mission of the coral-reefed southern seas, and her master, Capt. W. R. Meyer, wrote his version of the thrilling story.

"Ventura has taken all passengers and crew from Tahiti and abandoned vessel," was the message he handed his radio operator. "Ventura proceeding Pago Pago."

Far in the wake of Captain Meyer's ship, the dark bulk of the Tahiti shook under the pressure of tons of water against her breaking bulkheads and rolled deeper under the pounding of heavy waves. For more than two days—since her propeller was lost and water poured into her holds—the Tahiti's crew had battled to keep her afloat while the Ventura's men sped their ship, under forced draught, to the rescue.

Captain Meyer's fifteen-word message was the climax of a desperate battle to reach and save the sinking passenger liner.

Since Friday morning the Tahiti had been disabled and drifting some 1,300 miles out from Wellington and 500 of 600 miles south and east of Rarotonga of the Cook Islands group. Her starboard propeller was useless, the shaft broken, and water surged into her holds faster than the crew could pump it out.

Messages asking for assistance were followed by advice that the ship's condition was becoming momentarily more serious, and the Norwegian freighter Penyrhin steamed to the scene. The Tahiti was leaking badly and wallowing in the heavy sea when the Penyrhin came alongside at 9:30 P. M. last night (5 A. M. Sunday EST.).

The weather was clear, however, and Captain Totten of the Tahiti decided to wait until dawn before attempting to transfer the passengers. With the Penyrhin standing by, the Ventura was approaching at full speed. Union Company officers ordered Captain Totten to delay transfer of passengers until the Ventura arrived, unless the delay would be dangerous.

The Union Steamship Company's Tofua was en route to the scene. The Ventura was sighted by the officers of the sinking ship at 7:45 A. M., having made better time than expected. She soon came alongside where the Penyrhin was standing by and Captain Totten ordered the pumping on the Tahiti halted.

The ship was listing heavily and the high seas made transfer of passengers dangerous when the starboard boats were lowered from the Tahiti.

Although earlier orders from the Union Company officers had suggested that the crew be put aboard the Penyrhin, messages from the Ventura indicated that she had taken aboard passengers, and crew and mail. Efforts to salvage the sinking ship were abandoned and the rescue vessels pulled away.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will use the Cyrus Northrop Memorial Auditorium exclusively for Twin City concerts during the coming season, it was announced today. The move was made in an attempt to find a central location for both cities.

POSSIBILITY OF TRANSATLANTIC AIR RACE

Paris, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Possibility of a trans-Atlantic airplane race was developing today with improved flying weather. The contestants were Dieudonne Coste, who has already flown the South Atlantic to Brazil, and Lt. Paulin Paris, of the French navy.

Paris was ready to hop off in his Latecoere seaplane from Bordeaux. He had planned to start across the Atlantic at dawn today, it was revealed, but reports of fog forced a postponement.

Coste was awaiting favorable weather reports to start from LeBourget airport. Maurice Bellonte was to accompany him in the famous plane, Question Mark.

Fort Snelling—Col. Frederick H. Payne, assistant secretary of war, was the honor guest today at a luncheon given by Col. David Stone, fort commandant. Payne will leave tomorrow for Sheboygan, Wis.

G. N., N. P. Prepare Supplemental Merger Plea

ARE TO COMPLY WITH ORDER TO GIVE UP C. B. & Q.

NORTHERN ROADS HAVE ASKED I. C. C. NOT TO REOPEN THE CASE

ILLINOIS JOINS MINNESOTA STATING INTERESTS OF EMPLOYEES NOT CONSIDERED

Washington, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—The Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads today notified the interstate commerce commission they were preparing a supplemental merger application to comply with the commission's requirements that they give up the Burlington.

The roads asked the commission not to reopen the case, which has been requested in several petitions, since they were filing the supplemental application.

The two roads served notice simultaneously with the filing of another petition for reopening the case today. This came by filing of Illinois commerce commission which subscribed to the brief of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission. #### CHARGE 3 MEN WITH CONSPIRACY TO ASSASSINATE

DECLARES TRIO SOUGHT TO KILL GOVERNOR DOYLE E. CARLTON

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Sheriff W. B. Cahoon of Duval county told the United Press he expected to swear out warrants today against three men, charging conspiracy to procure the assassination of Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida.

The men are Fred O. Eberhardt, editor and publisher of the Florida State News, Tallahassee; and Frank Ralls and Henry Halsema of Jacksonville. All three were arrested Saturday and held without bond.

Sheriff Cahoon promised sensational developments in the case soon, but declined to discuss it further than to say the warrants would be sworn out before a local justice of the peace today.

Eberhardt and Ralls were arrested in their room at a Jacksonville hotel. Halsema was apprehended at his home. An additional charge of violation of the prohibition law will be placed against Halsema, the sheriff said, adding that 40 gallons of liquor were discovered at his home.

Tallahassee, Fla., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Although the grave charge of conspiracy against the life of Gov. Doyle E. Carlton was made in warrants sworn out today against three men, arrangements were made for their release under $500 bond each. The three are Fred Eberhardt, editor and publisher of the Florida State News of Tallahassee, and Frank Ralls and Henry Halsema of Jacksonville.

Sheriff W. B. Cahoon, who arrested the men Saturday, placed them in jail and held them without bond, swore out warrants against them today. Ion L. Farris, attorney for Eberhardt, said an agreement had been made for their release under $500 bond pending a preliminary hearing later this week.

"I have talked with my client, but he does not know the nature of the evidence against them," the attorney said. "He denied the report that he had made an attempt to get control of the east coast liquor racket, kill Carlton and blame the affair on Al Capone's gangsters."

Although Eberhardt is said to have been talking over long distance telephone to Vincent Giblin, Miami attorney for Capone, at the time of his arrest, Farris said the publisher denied intimacy with members of the Capone group.

Eberhardt has waged a strong fight in his paper against the Carlton administration and has attacked alleged gambling interests said to exist in the state. The attorney said he could see no motive for a conspiracy to assassinate the governor.

Under the Florida law conspiracy against life is a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of 12 months' imprisonment and a fine of $500.

OIL SPLASHED OUT OVER CABIN WINDOWS, MAGNETO SHORT CIRCUITED

Both blamed a crack in the motor crankcase for their descent. Oil splashed out over the cabin windows and motor and soaked into the magneto, short circuiting it, Jackson said.

William Pickers, their promotion manager, said the fliers would have brought the plane down yesterday "anyway, even if the motor hadn't cracked" because of their feeling over the size of financial rewards. Jackson and O'Brine denied, however, that the question of money entered into the matter.

But the rainbow the two saw when they went aloft July 21 had a bucket at the end with $200,000, they hoped. Still there were contracts, either signed or offered, totalling $39,000 for advertising, movie talks, and state fair appearances.

The orange and yellow monoplane, which had been in the air 27 days, started faltering several hours before the landing, the fliers said. Finally at 6:15 A. M. they were forced to message that a landing was imminent.

The little plane swung low over the far end of the field. O'Brine, who was piloting it, shut the motor off and the wheels of the craft touched the ground for the first time this month.

A crowd of 800 surged about. Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. O'Brine, wives of the pilots, were first at the cabin door, however. Jackson stepped out, a neat figure in white coveralls. He laughed and pulled O'Brine out after him. "O'Brine" had on an oil splattered blue shirt and old blue trousers.

The two embraced their wives. Neither appeared tired from the long flight, and their deafness wore off in a few minutes.

"We had a nice time," O'Brine said in commenting on the flight. "Our greatest kick was when we passed the Hunter boys' mark. It sure seems funny to be walking on the ground again."

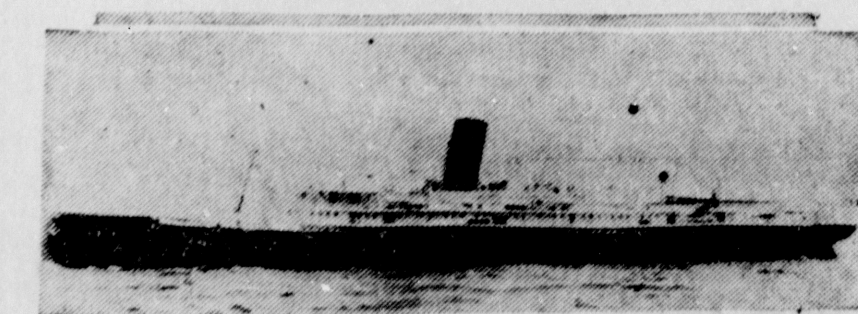

The official time of the flight was announced as 647 hours, 28 minutes and 30 seconds. It was estimated the plane had flown 42,000 miles, and the propeller revolved 52,000,000 times. More than 7,500 gallons of gasoline were consumed, and 147 refueling contacts made by the plane "Patsy Ann."

A contract has been signed for appearance of the fliers and their plane at the Minnesota state fair.

SHIP SINKS IN PACIFIC

The Royal Mail liner Tahiti, which left San Francisco Tuesday with approximately 300 persons on board, was abandoned yesterday after a two days' fight with heavy seas. The ship grew water-logged when it broke a propeller shaft. All passengers and crew were saved.

DISABLED SHIP POUNDED BY SEAS FOR MANY HOURS

VENTURA SPEEDED TO RESCUE, COMPLETES HEROIC MISSION

WATER POURED INTO TAHITI'S HOLD TWO DAYS SINCE LOSING PROPELLOR

London, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—An Exchange Telegram dispatch from Wellington, N. Z., today said the steamship Tahiti, abandoned in the South Pacific, sank this afternoon.

The Tahiti sank at 4:30 P. M. Rarotonga time, a message to Lloyds from Wellington, N. Z., stated.

Pago Pago, Samoa, Aug. 18.—The steamship Tahiti, on which 300 persons sailed gaily northward from Wellington for San Francisco six days ago, rolled under a heavy swell in the South Pacific today, shattered and abandoned after rescue of her passengers and crew.

Aboard the Matson steamer Ventura, the 173 adult passengers and two infants who sailed on the Tahiti of the Union Steamship Company were safe after the disabled and water-filled ship was pounded by a strong-running sea for many hours.

The Ventura, speeding from the scene of the rescue toward Pago, had ended another heroic mission of the coral-reefed southern seas, and her master, Capt. W. R. Meyer, wrote his version of the thrilling story.

"Ventura has taken all passengers and crew from Tahiti and abandoned vessel," was the message he handed his radio operator. "Ventura proceeding Pago Pago."

Far in the wake of Captain Meyer's ship, the dark bulk of the Tahiti shook under the pressure of tons of water against her breaking bulkheads and rolled deeper under the pounding of heavy waves. For more than two days—since her propeller was lost and water poured into her holds—the Tahiti's crew had battled to keep her afloat while the Ventura's men sped their ship, under forced draught, to the rescue.

Captain Meyer's fifteen-word message was the climax of a desperate battle to reach and save the sinking passenger liner.

Since Friday morning the Tahiti had been disabled and drifting some 1,300 miles out from Wellington and 500 or 600 miles south and east of Rarotonga of the Cook Islands group. Her starboard propeller was useless, the shaft broken, and water surged into her holds faster than the crew could pump it out.

Messages asking for assistance were followed by advices that the ship's condition was becoming momentarily more serious, and the Norwegian freighter Penyrhin steamed to the scene. The Tahiti was leaking badly and wallowing in the heavy sea when the Penyrhin came alongside at 9:30 P. M. last night (5 A. M. Sunday EST.).

The weather was clear, however, and Captain Totten of the Tahiti decided to wait until dawn before attempting to transfer the passengers. With the Penyrhin standing by, the Ventura was approaching at full speed. Union Company officers ordered Captain Totten to delay transfer of passengers until the Ventura arrived, unless the delay would be dangerous.

The Union Steamship Company's Tofua also was en route to the scene. The Ventura was sighted by the officers of the sinking ship at 7:45 A. M., having made better time than expected. She soon came alongside where the Penyrhin was standing by and Captain Totten ordered the pumping on the Tahiti halted.

The ship was listing heavily and the high seas made transfer of passengers dangerous when the starboard boats were lowered from the Tahiti.

Although earlier orders from the Union Company officers had suggested that the crew be put aboard the Penyrhin, messages from the Ventura indicated that she had taken aboard passengers, and crew and mail. Efforts to salvage the sinking ship were abandoned and the rescue vessels pulled away.

POSSIBILITY OF TRANSATLANTIC AIR RACE

Paris, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Possibility of a trans-Atlantic airplane race was developing today with improved flying weather. The contestants were Dieudonne Coste, who has already flown the South Atlantic to Brazil, and Lt. Paulin Paris, of the French navy.

Paris was ready to hop off in his Latécoere seaplane from Bordeaux. He had planned to start across the Atlantic at dawn today, it was revealed, but reports of fog forced a postponement.

Coste was awaiting favorable weather reports to start from LeBourget airport. Maurice Bellonte was to accompany him in the famous plane, Question Mark.

Fort Snelling—Col. Frederick H. Payne, assistant secretary of war, was the guest today at a luncheon given by Col. David Stone, fort commandant. Payne will leave tomorrow for Sheboygan, Wis.

SUMMERALL PRAISES 33RD

Thursday was a big day in the history of the Illinois National Guard when 10,000 guardsmen passed in review before Lieut. Governor Fred Sterling, Gen. Charles P. Summerall and a large group of distinguished army and navy officers and civilians. From left to right: Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, Lieut. Governor Fred Sterling, Gen. C. P. Summerall, Congressman Buckbee, Admiral W. S. Crosley, Maj. Gen. Parker, Maj. Gen. Haugh, Gen. C. Black, Gen. J. J. Quill, Adj. Gen. A. W. Reynolds, Rear Admiral Blackwood and Samuel Insull.

Dorothy, who spent the past week in Minneapolis visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Nelson. Mr. Nelson is a brother of Mrs. Theodore Nesheim.

Mrs. C. S. Bentley and daughter, Esther, and son, Rolland, returned last evening from Hutchinson via Minneapolis, where they spent the week-end visiting with relatives and friends. At Minneapolis they met Vern and Virginia Wachholz, a nephew and niece of Mrs. Bentley, and Elmer Severson, all of Winona and Miss Mildred Pokonary of Silver Lake. They came to Brainerd with the Bentleys and will spend several days visiting here.

Judge L. B. Kinder returned this morning from a two weeks' motor trip through Colorado and New Mexico. Mrs. Kinder stopped at White Bear on the return trip to visit with relatives. Judge Kinder reports that conditions in Minnesota are much better than in the states farther west. While in Tabernash, Colo., he met William Barnhart, former Brainerd resident, who inquired about his many friends and the conditions in Brainerd. Judge Kinder also met Neil Camp, president of the First National Bank of Durango, Colo., a cousin of Mrs. Irma Hartley, county superintendent of schools.

This city, a short time ago took the civil service examination for a departmental position in Washington. She received word yesterday that she stood the highest in the list of those who took the examination in Minnesota. This gives Miss Donovan a very good chance to secure a good position in Washington and she is being congratulated by her friends in this city. The young lady's per cent averaged about 85.

Miss Maybel Rosenberg entertained friends last night at her home, in honor of Miss Eleanor Johnson, of Chicago, and Miss Rasmussen and Mr. Alphonse of Sioux City, Ia., also Miss Ruth Lindberg of Duluth. The first part of the evening was spent playing games, followed by dainty refreshments. In the latter part of the evening piano selections were rendered and every one left expressing themselves as having had a royal good time.

The chicken season will open in this state on September 1 and the large number of nimrods are looking forward anxiously for the event. Reports from the county are to the effect that while there are a lot of chickens they will not be so plentiful this year as in former years. The heavy rains of last spring drowned out a number of the birds.

The men have started to work raising the old Wise building on Front street and they will start to move it tomorrow morning on a vacant lot on East Front street.

ADVOCATES A SHORTER WORKING WEEK FOR LABOR

E. G. HALL, PRESIDENT STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR, IN STATEMENT

ALSO A RESTRICTED WORKING DAY TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT IN MINNESOTA

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 18.—(UP)—E. G. Hall, Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, today advocated a shorter working week and a restricted working day as a temporary measure of relieving unemployment in Minnesota.

Hall made his annual address before 225 delegates and approximately 100 visitors to the fortieth annual state labor convention.

The state federation president pointed out that the shortened working time would bring money to a larger group of laborers and would spread the effects of the unemployment crisis without making one group feel the full burden.

Hall advocated changes in the wage schedules on highway construction to prevent men working long hours overtime while others went without any work at all. He said the men received only 30 cents an hour for their overtime work.

This year's convention is a legislative session with no election of officers. Officers are elected for two-year terms. Fourteen resolutions are scheduled to be presented to the convention for action on Tuesday by the legislative committee headed by Frank T. Starkey. The legislative committee met here Saturday to work over resolutions which will be presented.

RAISE STANDARD OF ENFORCEMENT IN DRY WORK

PROHIBITION DIRECTOR A. W. WOODCOCK STARTS HIS CAMPAIGN

TWO ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS SUSPENDED FOR VIOLATIONS OF NEW CODE

Washington, Aug. 18.—(UP)—The campaign of Prohibition Director A. W. Woodcock to raise the standard of enforcement policies resulted today in the suspension of two enforcement officers for violations of the new code.

Agent Robert F. Merkle of Milwaukee, Wis., was suspended for five days for drawing a gun in a traffic dispute with William A. French in Milwaukee on July 29. Agent Basil Quinn of Washington, D. C., was suspended for the same period for striking Thomas E. Quinlan during an argument over right of way in the capital on July 26.

"This is in line," Woodcock said, "with the effort to raise the standards of the service."

Five days' suspension represents a loss of $35 to each of the agents. Woodcock said other charges involving the use of a gun were pending against Merkle and were being investigated.

The program of the new prohibition director was instituted with an order that agents carry out their duties with regard for the constitutional rights of citizens and without recourse to weapons except in self-defense. Woodcock let it be known that he would tolerate no disorderly conduct by agents and it was understood punishments would become more severe if dry officers failed to heed his instructions.

Shortly after assuming office Woodcock suspended two operatives for use of weapons in searching an automobile.

Good Roads Build State Popularity

GOOD roads, among which the Jefferson highway, extending from Winnipeg to New Orleans, is one of the most popular tourist routes, have helped materially in building Minnesota's motor traffic to a point where this state is now recognized as one of the nation's leading summer playgrounds, according to H. C. Hotelling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota association.

Copy of Mr. Hotelling's various announcements on the value of tourist traffic should be sent to the nine-foot channel Upper Mississippi enthusiasts, so they may realize what the tourist trade means to Minnesota and which will not be attracted here should we permit our northern lakes and streams to be tapped of still more water. It takes water to make lakes and rivers. Without sufficient water in these lakes and rivers Minnesota loses the tourist trade, an asset of constantly growing importance.

In 1917, continues Mr. Hotelling, when the Ten Thousand Lakes association was organized, Minnesota's tourists numbered 17,000 annually and their expenditures were $937,000. Last year Minnesota was visited by 1,677,538 tourists and their expenditures were $87,708,070. The state of Illinois was the greatest contributor to this tourist army and Iowa was next. Missouri was third, Indiana fourth, Ohio fifth and New York sixth.

With the development of the tourist business, Minnesota has greatly improved her facilities for taking care of summer guests. Splendid new resorts and hotels have been built throughout the state. Golf courses have been developed in more than 200 communities. Roads have been improved and in localities where there are many summer homes, electric light lines and telephone service has been extended to take care of the summer guests.

There are now 1,040 resorts in Minnesota. This is an increase of 60 over last year, and approximately 400 more resorts than there were in Minnesota four years ago. These resorts range in their appointments from summer palaces costing upwards of half a million dollars, to the cabin resorts hidden deep in the woods.

Minnesota has much to offer in natural attractions. First, a delightful summer climate lures many from warmer regions. Her 10,000 lakes, with their opportunities for bathing, fishing, boating and varied water sports have an alluring appeal. Her forests, wild life and scenic beauty entices many, but even with all these, good roads are necessary in this day of automobiles, if these playgrounds are to be utilized to the fullest extent.

Guest Speakers

THE service clubs are not the only ones who have guest speakers. The churches, too, are taking advantage of having visiting clergy fill pulpits.

For instance, yesterday the First Baptist church heard two prominent out of town clergymen. The guest preacher at the morning service held at the Summer Tabernacle was Rev. Charles Durden who officiated in the absence of Rev. Edgar A. Valiant, who spent the week end in Minneapolis on account of the wedding of his daughter, Miss Ruth, to LeRoy C. Krumwiede. Rev. Durden's pastorate is the First Baptist church of Omaha, Neb. Previous to his going to the church in Omaha, Rev. Durden served for a number of years as pastor of the First church of Bloomington, Ill. He is well known in Baptist circles. The Durdens are spending their vacation at Upper Hay Lake.

The Rev. R. Wilbur Babcock, pastor of the Temple Baptist church of Minneapolis, spoke at the evening service. The Babcocks are well known in Brainerd, having maintained a summer home on Gull lake for the past six or seven years.

Other churches with guest preachers have included the Swedish Bethany, the First Methodist, Swedish Baptist, First Lutheran Evangelical and many others.

Aviation Spreading

THE cause of aviation is daily gaining new adherents and being used for new purposes.

An example occurred last week at the Rosko airport. A summer tourist had a sick child and the family doctor, who is a noted surgeon, was communicated with and came posthaste to Brainerd by airplane, to advise regarding any possible operation or method of cure.

In the past persons have flown to Brainerd on business missions of various kinds, examining realty properties, fur farms, etc., and for recreational and convention purposes. A Brainerd plane taxied to Wisconsin carrying a farmer from the vicinity of Brainerd who went in answer to the call of a sick relative.

A hundred and one uses are being found for the airplane and with such extension comes greater use of the local airport, which this season has registered over 50 airplanes.

Beautiful Pictures at State Fair

ART galleries from Chicago to New York will contribute to this year's fine arts exhibit at the Minnesota State Fair. The 1929 fine arts exhibit was pronounced by exhibitors as one of the finest of its kind in the United States and last year's exhibits will be outdone by this year's, it is confidently expected.

The Grand Central galleries of New York will send 100 oils by famous artists and more than 40 oils will come from the Chicago Art galleries. The Chicago Society of Etchers will send many prints. It is good to see the attention paid American talent in all fields of art.

All Kinds of People in World

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, thoughtless ones as well as careful ones, reckless ones as well as cautious ones.

The prize for dumbness as a driver and for want of consideration of all kinds of common sense in traffic, goes to a tourist girl who last week stopped her big touring car in the middle of the Mississippi river bridge at Brainerd while she calmly walked to the end of the bridge and took pictures of the car and its passengers.

In the meantime, of course, she held up traffic on her side of the bridge and made it dangerous for drivers in the other lane of the bridge.

Hot weather hastened the South Dakota pickle crop, bringing cucumbers in the Belle Fourche area to maturity nearly 10 days before last year's crop.

Town Being Torn Down
So Coal Can Be Mined

Breslau.—The village of Buchwalde near Hoyerswerda, with a population of about 500, must disappear to permit the working of coal veins underlying it. Thirty-one of the village's 43 houses have already been torn down and the remaining 12 are now being wrecked. The coal deposits were discovered more than 20 years ago, but are only now being opened up. Most of the inhabitants of Buchwalde have gone to the neighboring village of Werninghoff, where they are employed in coal brickett factories.

Get Big Surprise

Washington.—Many Washington residents were surprised to learn that the site of the United States Capitol was once called Rome and the nearby Anacostia river, the Tiber. These Latin names, according to Italian Ambassador Nobile Giacomo de Martino, were bestowed by an Englishman, Francis Pope, who owned the land in 1633.

Home of Watercress

Motoring between Henley and Nettledon recently, says a writer in the London Evening News, I came for the first time upon "Watercress Village." It must be unique in England. Its name Ewelme, pronounced Yewelma. A stream as clear as crystal runs down the middle of the village street, and watercress grows in profusion in it. Rustic bridges cross the stream and lead up to the cottage gardens. Further broad expanses of watercress beds lie beyond the cottages, and the occupants make a living from watercress.

Johnson's Impeachment

President Johnson was impeached by the house of representatives, but was acquitted by the senate in the impeachment trial. The Constitution gives the house the sole power of impeachment and the senate the sole power to try impeachment cases. An impeachment is similar to an indictment in that an official who has been impeached is not necessarily guilty, any more than is a person who has been indicted by a grand jury.

Williston, N. D., Aug. 18. — (U.P.) — Three baseball players with more than three-quarters of a century of baseball experience behind them today had ended their careers.

Sunday's baseball game between Watford City and Williston marked the retirement of D. C. Poling, Pete Slyter and Vane Jones. All three players had been prominent in baseball here since coming to Williston. The trio have bet $50 forfeit that yesterday's game was the last one of their careers.

Poling began his baseball playing at Gladys in this county in 1908, where he caught for four years and then pitched for five years. Later he played on the in- and outfields. During the world war he was a member of a team that defeated Alexander on an Army team at the University of Beaune, France. He came here to play with Williston six years ago.

Jones who was raised near Pine River, Minn., began his baseball career at Brainerd. Then he played at Pine River, Cooperstown, Fargo, Wadena and Casselton. After two years in Montana, he came to Williston four years ago.

Slyter, who was his teammate for 15 years, got a tryout with the Three-I League in 1908. He played 54 games before he was traded to Pekin in the Illinois-Missouri League, where he played when Schalk was catching for Taylorville and Alexander pitching for Canton in the same league. He came to North Dakota to play third base with the Bowdon team for two years. Then he went to Carrington and Cooperstown. At Fargo he managed the independents for two years. With Jones, he set out for Dooley, Mont., where he played two years before returning to Williston.

When Nanda opened the box she thought at first that the heart was a chocolate confection or a silk knick knack filled with candies or perhaps a toy, interpreted as a symbolic gift from some unknown silent lover, but upon lifting the heart out of the box she discovered it was indeed real flesh, and terror stricken dropped it on the stage and fled to the dressing room with the chorus girls.

CHICAGO CUBS MAINTAIN THEIR TWO AND A HALF GAME LEADERSHIP

By UNITED PRESS

A beautiful pitching performance by Dazzy Vance featured Sunday's game in the national league. Vance yielded but eight hits and struck out nine men as the Brooklyn Robins trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 0.

The Chicago Cubs maintained their two and one-half game leadership of the league by defeating the Phillies, 5 to 4. The Cubs scored the winning runs in the eighth on a walk, hit batter, another walk, force-out, and a single by Lester Bell.

The New York Giants and the St. Louis Cards slugged the ball all afternoon to divide a double-header. The Giants took the first game 12 to 4 and lost the second 11 to 4. Burleigh Grimes held the Giants hitless for six innings in the second game.

Boston's Braves took a tight hold on sixth place by defeating the Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a twin bill, 4 to 3 and 9 to 8. The second game went 15 innings and 37 players, including 11 pitchers, saw service.

In the American league the New York Yankees split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox. The Yankees won the first game 8 to 7 in 10 innings. The second, which the Sox took, 6 to 1, was halted after five innings by darkness. Babe Ruth hit his 44th home run in the first game.

Cleveland took a double-header from Boston, 9 to 3, and 2 to 0. The second game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of the Boston Sunday baseball law.

Detroit overwhelmed Washington 15 to 1 in the second game of their series. Philadelphia and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Kansas City, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—"Poa Ridge" Day. Kansas City Blues pitcher allowed only 8 hits at Louisville while his teammates were making 9 hits in the first of a double header here yesterday, but the Colonels worked over 4 runs to the Blue's 3. Fette pitched the second frame for the Blues and was given a 3 to 0 victory, splitting the double bill.

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—The second place St. Paul club increased its prestige in a double header yesterday by taking both ends of the bill. The score was 2 to 2, and 4 to 3. Tight pitching in pinches and hits when they counted kept St. Paul in front by the narrow margins in both contests.

Minneapolis, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Toledo and Minneapolis divided a double bill here yesterday while Nick Cullop, Minneapolis outfielder, clouted his 42nd home run to equal the American association record. The first game went to Toledo 8 to 1, while the Millers took the nightcap by a similarly safe margin, 9 to 2.

Minwaukee, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—If Indianapolis was weak on the offensive in their first game with Milwaukee yesterday which they lost 1 to 6, they redeemed themselves with a will in the nightcap by scoring 14 to Milwaukee's 1. Cywngros held Milwaukee to four hits in the second game while Strelecki held Indianapolis to a like number in the opener.

An advance sale is necessary to guarantee the $250 required to bring the semi-pro club here. The game with Little Falls will recall those eventful ones in Brainerd baseball history years back when the two clubs provided sensational exhibitions.

Heirs To Helen's Throne?

SARAH PALFREY.
NEW ENGLAND'S
TENNIS PRODIGY, WHO HAS BEEN PICKED BY HELEN WILLS AS HER
MOST PROBABLE SUCCESSOR.

WHILE Mrs. Helen Wills Moody seems to reign over the feminine tennis world as completely and as serenely as Bobby Jones does over all golfers, many critics are ever on the lookout for potential successors to the championship glories that are Queen Helen's. There are just about half a dozen young women who are already displaying enough promise to deserve some consideration as possible court queens in the future. None of them, of course, are within a year or two of Queen Helen's championship class.

The East has Sarah Palfrey, of Massachusetts, who, though but 17 years old, has played much precocious tennis for two or three seasons already. Still a child, with most of the physical handicaps that such extreme youth entails, Sarah, nevertheless, looms definitely as a future great. About all she needs is about two years of experience. She has been acquiring the latter rapidly by entering numerous tournaments, matching her skill, win or lose, with some of our ablest court veterans.

The West believes that its sparkling "Midge" Gladman will come to her own this season with high ranking when the 1936 records are complete. This California girl, who seemed to be decidedly off her game for most of 1929, started at Ojai late last spring by successive triumphs over Edith Cross, third in national rankings, and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, who had eliminated previously Mrs. L. A. Harper, No. 5 in U. S. tennis ratings.

Miss Gladman's game is still a bit too erratic, but far better on the whole than it was last year. "Midge" should shine during the late Summer and Fall championships. If she can but steady her game, California is sure of having another court champion of the calibre for which that State is famous.

This year, however, neither Sarah Palfrey, "Midge" Gladman or any other aspirants are likely to deprive Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of any tennis laurels. But they should figure notably in changing the rankings of America's women tennis stars. Either or both should make "the first ten," in the 1930 ratings.

Paris.—The French senate is looking for a practical joker so lacking in taste as to attempt to dupe that august body. Some days ago a bill came up for debate; the members became heated in their arguments. At the height of general ill feeling one who had not joined in the discussion ironically remarked that the bill in question not only had already been voted, but that the Journal Officiel had only that morning promulgated it as a law.

A beautiful pitching performance by Dazzy Vance featured Sunday's game in the national league. Vance yielded but eight hits and struck out nine men as the Brooklyn Robins trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 0.

The Chicago Cubs maintained their two and one-half game leadership of the league by defeating the Phillies, 5 to 4. The Cubs scored the winning runs in the eighth on a walk, hit batter, another walk, force-out, and a single by Lester Bell.

The New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals slugged the ball all afternoon to divide a double-header. The Giants took the first game 12 to 4 and lost the second 14 to 4. Burleigh Grimes held the Giants hitless for six innings in the second game.

Boston's Braves took a tight hold on sixth place by defeating the Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a twin bill, 4 to 3 and 9 to 8. The second game went 13 innings and 37 players, including 11 pitchers, saw service.

In the American league the New York Yankees split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox. The Yankees won the first game 8 to 7 in 10 innings. The second, which the Sox took, 6 to 1, was halted after five innings by darkness. Babe Ruth hit his 44th home run in the first game.

Cleveland took a double-header from Boston, 9 to 3, and 2 to 0. The second game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of the Boston Sunday baseball law.

Detroit overwhelmed Washington 15 to 1 in the second game of their series. Philadelphia and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Kansas City, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—"Pea Ridge" Day, Kansas City Blues pitcher allowed only 8 hits at Louisville while his teammates were making 9 hits in the first of a double header here yesterday, but the Colonels worked over 4 runs to the Blue's 3. Fette pitched the second frame for the Blues and was given a 3 to 0 victory, splitting the double bill.

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—The second place St. Paul club increased its prestige in a double header yesterday by taking both ends of the bill. The scores were 2 to 2, and 4 to 3. Tight pitching in pinches and hits when they counted kept St. Paul in front by the narrow margins in both contests.

Minneapolis, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Toledo and Minneapolis divided a double bill here yesterday while Nick Cullup, Minneapolis outfielder, clouted his 42nd home run to equal the American association record. The first game went to Toledo 8 to 1, while the Millers took the nightcap by a similarly safe margin, 9 to 2.

Minwaukee, Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—If Indianapolis was weak on the offensive in their first game with Milwaukee yesterday which they lost 1 to 6, they redeemed themselves with a will in the nightcap by scoring 14 to Milwaukee's 1. Cvangros held Milwaukee to four hits in the second game while Strelecki held Indianapolis to a like number in the opener.

Heirs To Helen's Throne?

By HARDIN BURNLEY

WHILE Mrs. Helen Wills Moody seems to reign over the feminine tennis world as completely and as serenely as Bobby Jones does over all golfers, many critics are ever on the lookout for potential successors to the championship glories that are Queen Helen's. There are just about half a dozen young women who are already displaying enough promise to deserve some consideration as possible court queens in the future. None of them, of course, are within a year or two of Queen Helen's championship class.

The East has Sarah Palfrey, of Massachusetts, who, though but 17 years old, has played much precocious tennis for two or three seasons already. Still a child, with most of the physical handicaps that such extreme youth entails, Sarah, nevertheless, looms definitely as a future great. About all she needs is about two years of experience. She has been acquiring the latter rapidly by entering numerous tournaments, matching her skill, win or lose, with some of our ablest court veterans.

The West believes that its sparkling "Midge" Gladman will come to her own this season with high ranking when the 1930 records are complete. This California girl, who seemed to be decidedly off her game for most of 1929, started at Ojai late last Spring by successive triumphs over Edith Cross, third in national rankings, and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, who had eliminated previously Mrs. L. A. Harper, No. 5 in U. S. tennis ratings. Miss Gladman's game is still a bit too erratic, but far better on the whole than it was last year. "Midge" should shine during the late Summer and Fall championships. If she can but steady her game, California is sure of having another court champion of the calibre for which that State is famous.

This year, however, neither Sarah Palfrey, "Midge" Gladman or any other aspirants are likely to deprive Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of any tennis laurels. But they should figure notably in changing the rankings of America's women tennis stars. Either or both should make "the first ten," in the 1930 ratings.

FEED TOWN OF 10,000 EVERY DAY IN WORLD'S BIGGEST BUILDING

Chicago Merchandise Mart, a Wholesale City Under One Roof, to Have Most Novel Restaurant in America to Cater to the Ap- petites of Merchant-Buyers of the World.

THE Chicago Merchandise Mart, the world's biggest business building, already one of the outstanding institutions of the midwestern metropolis, will house the world's biggest restaurant, with an international menu and accommodations to feed daily a whole town's population of diners. It is estimated that it will be able to dispense food to 10,000 a day, according to Andrew C. Weisburg, nationally known hotel man, who has secured the exclusive restaurant rights in this new central market under a twenty-year lease. The official opening of the mammoth restaurant will take place in early September.

More than 30,000 square feet of space in the Mart's grand lobby will be utilized by the restaurant's five units. There will be many unique features of equipment and service and a roster of more than 500 employees. To take care of this vast army of eaters from all parts of the world, it will require daily 500 pounds of butter, about 3,000 pounds of meat, 3,000 pounds of potatoes, 300 dozen eggs, 750 dozen rolls and 250 fowl. In addition to this will be enormous quantities of vegetables and fruits, which it is difficult to estimate.

Need Huge Quantities of Food

On one side of the great 650-foot grand lobby will be the men's grill, accommodating 200 at a time; and the main dining room for men and women, to be called the Governors' room, with a capacity of 600 at a time. Opposite these will be a lunch counter about 1,000 feet long, the biggest in the world, which can care for the needs of at least 5,000 a day, and a soda fountain capable of serving 2,500 a day. These will be grouped about a huge kitchen, which, according to Mr. Weisburg, will be the most modern in equipment and service yet put into operation in this country. A woman's grill and tea room to accommodate 450 people will be located on the mezzanine floor. Outside of these five units, a special service for tenants in their offices and display rooms will be provided that will enable them to order from any one of the five restaurants. Livered employees will deliver the orders on electric wagons at any time of the day.

The men's grill and the main dining room will be most colorful in their decorations. The equipment for all the units will be of the most modern type, cleanliness and convenience being the paramount points of consideration. The metal used in the construction of the equipment will be of special silvery finish, specially rolled at the mills for this installation. Not a single bolt or rivet will be visible, thus insuring a clean, even surface easily cleaned. For the kitchen, all equipment, such as refrigerators, ranges and broilers, are to be set on special bases. The refrigerators will represent the best construction that modern refrigeration engineering can produce. Temperatures will be automatically controlled without the aid of human hand.

Employees Specially Trained.

The bakery, which will be operated by electricity, is to be a model of efficiency and cleanliness and is flooded with daylight through a series of large windows having a southern exposure. The lunch counters will be built entirely of marble in a series of "U" shapes, with cold foods easily accessible from center serving cases so that within ten or fifteen minutes one may be served a complete meal and ready to leave. The chairs at the counters will have comfortable full backs and sufficiently far apart to prevent crowding. The soda fountain will be 100 feet long and will be electrically refrigerated to keep the ice creams, sirups and other foods for light lunches in perfect condition. Fifty-six thousand dollars' worth of silver has been purchased so that the patron at the lunch counter will have the same service in this regard as in the grills or main dining room.

For the men's grill and the main dining room, men waiters will be used, but in all the other units the feminine hand will care for the patrons. Henry C. Gordon, general manager, who is famed as a kindly but firm disciplinarian, said that one of the first features to be established will be a school for employees. This school will be different from the average business school. Mr. Gordon not only wants through this means to improve the service of the restaurants, but he also seeks to improve the employees. He teaches thrift and building character. The ideas of the employees as to how the restaurants should be run are welcomed.

Tours World for Ideas

Mr. Weisburg, who also owns the Hotel Oliver at South Bend, Ind., and the new Harrison being constructed in Chicago, recently made a tour of the world in quest of new ideas for the Merchandise Mart restaurant.

For instance, the merchant arriving at the Mart goes directly to the special accommodation desk in the restaurant, leaves his hand baggage, is assigned his room, and is free to proceed about his business. His day's task completed, he then goes to the Harrison hotel, Chicago's newest popular priced hostelry with rates at $2.50 and $3.00 for room with bath and circulating ice water, to find his baggage in his room and the room itself ready for his use. It has been estimated that this novel arrangement will save the merchant-buyer at least one hour's time in addition to taxi expense.

One of the world's most famous chefs, Pierre J. Berard, employed at a salary of $10,000 a year, will supervise the menus in this restaurant.

Pierre is a student and psychologist, who started in life as a sculptor and architect, but who found cooking his forte. He is not only an artist in food chemistry but in line and color as well. He is skilled in fashioning graceful forms as well as in seasoning and flavoring. It is his contention that a chef must appeal to the eye as well as the palate. He has been chef at the Ritz and Berkeley hotels, London; the Maurice, in Paris, and in many of the big hostels in America, including the Ritz-Carlton and New Yorker in New York City. Paul Polret, the noted fashion expert of Paris, pronounces Pierre the "greatest cook in the world." Pierre is famous as a creator of rare dishes and says he hopes to enable diners to understand what they are eating without a knowledge of French. He is planning to tell on the menu just what those high-sounding names bring you when you place an order.

"Buyers from all parts of the United States and foreign countries will come to this great central market," said Mr. Weisburg. "Merchants from the big cities and the small communities will be among the thousands who will visit this gigantic structure every day. There will be every conceivable kind of appetite to cater to, so we will have an international menu. With the five units of the restaurant we also will be able to have a price range that will meet the pocketbooks of all classes."

To Be Buying Capital of U. S.

The Mart itself, which houses more than six hundred of the outstanding manufacturers, wholesalers and importers, is destined to become the new buying capital of the United States, if not the world.

The purpose of the Mart is to bring a great community of mercantile leaders to present the latest ideas, patterns, styles, designs and colors in merchandise, developed by the world's foremost manufacturers. More than 85 per cent of the 4,000,000 square feet of display space has been leased and buyers from all parts of the country are beginning to come to this new central market.

"The Mart embodies the modern ideas of a concentrated market, of bringing the buyer to market instead of attempting by means of sample cases, traveling salesmen and trunks to inadequately take the market to the merchant," said Claude A. Welles, general manager of the Mart. "The arrangement of the display floors has been scientifically worked out with the object of conserving the buyer's time and energy to the utmost, providing every necessary aid to expedite his examination of goods and for his convenience while in the market."

27 Miles of Corridors

"The buyer can enter the Mart in the morning, attend to all his business and personal affairs during the day, and do practically all his buying without leaving the shelter of one roof until bedtime. This is a Department Store for Stores—a concentration of related lines under one roof. It will effect a revolution in distribution, will reduce the time necessary for the merchant's buying and correspondingly increase his time for selling."

Each of the eighteen display floors has sales corridors 650 feet long, a display space of around five acres veritable business boulevards. Bordering on these are hundreds of lines of merchandise visible through 27 miles of windows. This great space a total of 100 acres in the entire building, makes it possible to house the selling and display activities of the many allied concerns on a single floor with related groups on adjoining floors. It is estimated that $500,000,000 will be the total annual sales of the Mart.

Glamour of Old Whaling Days Reflected in Story of Sea Bride

STEEL and steam and the discovery of petroleum have taken the old glamour off whaling. The leviathans of the deep are hunted today with all the machinery of modern efficiency. But in the old days it was a red-blooded man's trade fraught with incessant danger and demanding the highest order of resourcefulness and courage. It was a hard trade for men and more than often a tragic one for women. There was no wireless, not even the cable, and the average voyage of a whaling ship was from two to three years. Often nothing was heard of her again after she had set sail from Nantucket or Boston or Sag Harbor or New Bedford. Time supplied the only tidings—the certainty as she became "overdue" by a year or a space of years that she had met the fate of so many whalers and been lost with all hands.

Down To Sea on Wedding Day

Whale captains were of a hardy type—they had to be—and now and then one took his bride on one of his long voyages. In "The Sea Bride," the Ben Ames Williams' serial which will be published in this newspaper soon, the author tells the story of a girl who went down to the sea on the afternoon of her wedding day, and endured the perils and vicissitudes of an old time whaling cruise. In three years of constant danger she saw men destroyed by drink and brutality, lived amid plotting and treachery, suffered shipwreck—and, amazingly, won love and happiness.

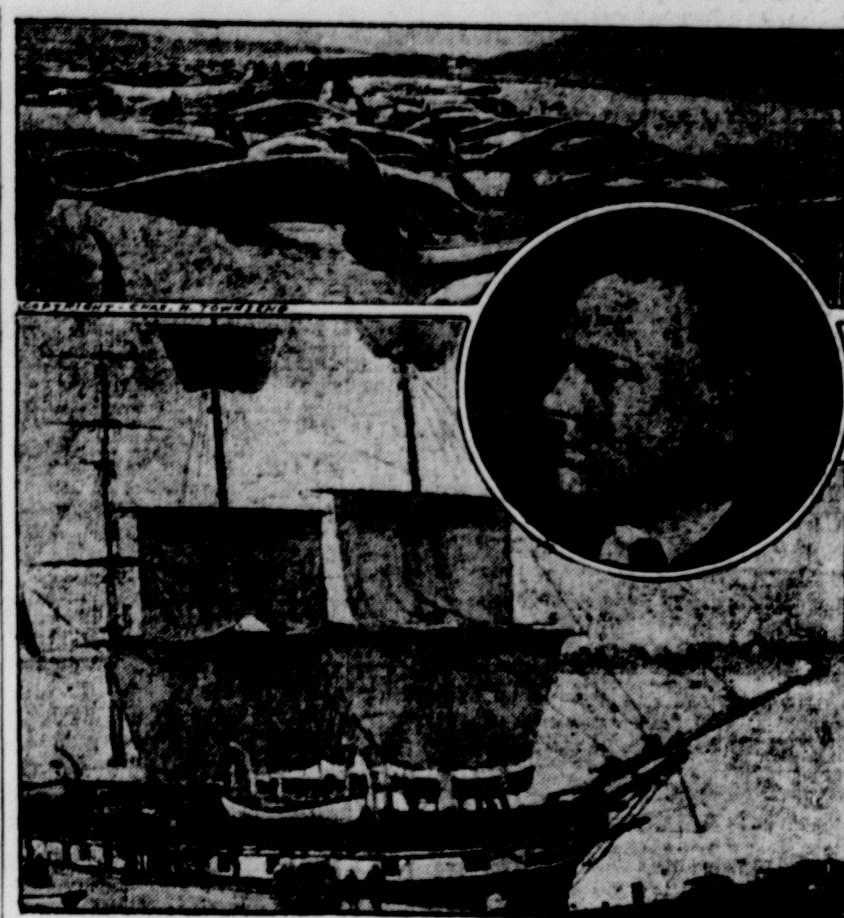

Faith Kilcup, the sea bride, marries Captain Noll Wing of the "Sally Sims," as the story runs, because she admires his strength and courage though he is much older than she. Her brother is a member of the ship's crew as is Daniel Tobey, the second mate, who has been her suitor from childhood and is a man of uncertain character. She shares the small cabin of the ship with the "afterguard" and soon learns that all that is worst in men makes its appearance in the narrow world of a ship.

Were Arctic Pioneers

Her husband changes with the other men as his age begins to tell on him; his power of command slackens and he takes to drink. Drink maddens him sometimes and in a brutal fight with a member of the crew he kicks the man in the face and blinds him in one eye. Thereafter he lives in constant fear of his victim's vengeance and eventually leaps overboard and is lost.

While drink is destroying him and long before his power over his men has gone, Dan Tobey tries to undermine the faith of the captain's bride. He becomes her bitter enemy when the vessel ships a new hand who quickly becomes his rival. The story, from that point forward, deals with the course of love and its final triumph.

A whale is a vast creature and when hunted by hand, as in the old days, frequently turned on his hunters and destroyed them. A "stove boat" was common. So common that every ship's carpenter had to be a mechanic so expert that he could take the pieces of a broken boat and fit them together into a new one. Whales, charging across the face of the ocean when mad with suffering and fury, have been known to sink ships.

New novel by Ben Ames Williams (in circle), "The Sea Bride," has centered attention on the tremendous changes that have taken place in the whaling industry and robbed it of most of its old glamour and romance. Few of the old whalers are still float and almost none of them are used for whaling. A typical example of the type of whaler, the Morgan, pictured above, is anchored at South Dartmouth, Massachusetts, and used as a clubhouse. At top is an extraordinary photo of a school of whales stranded on a shore.

Whaling ships, too, hunted their prey in both the north and south polar regions and the icebergs and pack ice of the Arctic and Antarctic accounted for many which never returned to port.

On the other hand if a whaler was lucky the profits of a voyage were often so large that her captain could retire and her owners build themselves fine houses in the New England seaport towns. Whale oil now has a variety of uses, but once the world depended on whale oil for nearly all its lighting oil supply and in lean fishing years the price went high.

A Race for Fortune

A captain and crew who were lucky enough to fill a ship's hold quickly in a lean year were "sitting pretty" as we would say today. It was because of the element of risk and speculation in the industry that it drew the peculiar kind of men to it that it did. On leaving for a whaling voyage every man was on a "lay" or percentage of the ship's profits, from the captain to the cabin boy, and knew that he might come home—if he came home—either with a competence for life or completely empty handed.

In "The Sea Bride" the fortunes of the "Sally Sims" are low when they are saved by a "find" of ambergris, the substance from which perfumery is made, and which is given off by whales. Its value is $60,000 to the people of the "Sally Sims" and its finding makes one of the high points of drama in the story.

Outside of its power as a human story "The Sea Bride" will appeal to readers of this newspaper as a narrative of stirring happenings in a time which has vanished from sea history and will never come back. Today the whale is hunted by steam vessels, killed with bomb guns, and cut and boiled at shore stations that are like modern oil refineries. The romance of the industry has gone. Its only trace remains here and there in some fiction masterpiece like "The Sea Bride."

GIRL, 21, WEDS SIXTH TIME SEEKING LOVE

Tennessee Maid Is Nearing World's Record.

Memphis, Tenn.—"Pat" Theresa Barnett, twenty-one, pretty and romantic South side girl, is tied with DeWolf Hopper who has been married six times and is one up on Peggy Joyce who has had a string of only five mates.

The artful "Pat" Barnett, who divorced her fifth husband a few months ago and sought solace in suicide by poison, upon recovering from the attempted self-destruction has just been married again—her sixth appearance at the altar.

"Pat's" philosophy is:

"Find happiness through marriage." "I don't know whether she'll stay with this one or not," says Mrs. George L. Barnett, 415 Gaston place, the gray-haired mother.

"But I do hope so. It's high time, 'Pat' got settled."

Not Like Mother.

"Pat's" search for happiness is not the road of her mother, who with a gentle smile sits in her garden nursing dreams of her engineer-husband, who, injured in a railroad accident at Coldwater, Miss., in 1900, died from those injuries 12 years later.

"I found one good man and stuck to him," says "Pat's" mother.

It was just two months ago that "Pat" emerged from a divorce court, rid of No. 5, Michael Silverman, whom she sued on grounds of nonsupport. And then she played away for a time, swallowed a poison potion, was rushed to a hospital and when she had fully recovered her equilibrium and equanimity, said:

"Why, I was in love again. There's no use living with a man if you don't love him."

"I'm glad I didn't die when I took poison, because I've found the only one this time."

One Mate Killed.

One of "Pat's" husbands was killed in an automobile accident just two days after the wedding. The other four—?

"Oh, I got rid of them in divorce court," said "Pat."

She keeps track of them, "just to see how they're getting along." Two are in Memphis, one is in New Orleans, and the other is in Los Angeles. She said:

"The one I got now is a perfect type."

"Well, let's hope he's permanent," said her widowed mother.

"Pat," who has taken a few beauty prizes, didn't get to finish high school. She got the matrimonial fad a few weeks before she was to receive her diploma.

Women in Montana Wear Evening Gowns of Paper

Corvallis, Mont.—What if it had rained or if there had been a windstorm? Or what if somebody had slipped a lighted match in the wrong place?

But none of these occurred and the ingenious women of Corvallis triumphed.

Just before a library benefit, the choral leader ruled that evening gowns must be worn. Chorus members were disturbed. They were just farm women and few, if any, boasted evening dresses.

Came the night of the benefit and lo and behold, the chorus turned out resplendently attired in stylish black evening gowns that rustled audibly as the women walked towards the stage.

The secret was too good to keep. All this sartorial elegance, all this metropolitan splendor was made of nothing more nor less than plain black crepe paper.

Artist of High Rank

Winslow Homer was the first to be generally acclaimed the first outstanding marine painter in this country and many critics regard him as the best of the American marine painters.

For the men's grill and the main dining room, men waiters will be used, but in all the other units the feminine hand will care for the patrons. Henry C. Gordon, general manager, who is famed as a kindly but firm disciplinarian, said that one of the first features to be established will be a school for employees. This school will be different from the average business school. Mr. Gordon not only wants through this means to improve the service of the restaurants, but he also seeks to improve the employees. He teaches thrift and building character. The ideas of the employees as to how the restaurants should be run are welcomed.

Tours World for Ideas

Mr. Weisburg, who also owns the Hotel Oliver at South Bend, Ind., and the new Harrison being constructed in Chicago, recently made a tour of the world in quest of new ideas for the Merchandise Mart restaurant.

For instance, the merchant arriving at the Mart goes directly to the special accommodation desk in the restaurant, leaves his hand baggage, is assigned his room, and is free to proceed about his business. His day's task completed, he then goes to the Harrison hotel, Chicago's newest popular priced hostelry with rates at $2.50 and $3.00 for room with bath and circulating ice water, to find his baggage in his room and the room itself ready for his use. It has been estimated that this novel arrangement will save the merchant-buyer at least one hour's time in addition to taxi expense.

One of the world's most famous chefs, Pierre J. Berard, employed at a salary of $10,000 a year, will supervise the menus in this restaurant.

Pierre is a student and psychologist, who started in life as a sculptor and architect, but who found cooking his forte. He is not only an artist in food chemistry but in line and color as well. He is skilled in fashioning graceful forms as well as in seasoning and flavoring. It is his contention that a chef must appeal to the eye as well as the palate. He has been chef at the Ritz and Berkeley hotels, London; the Maurice, in Paris, and in many of the big hostels in America, including the Ritz-Carlton and New Yorker in New York City. Paul Poret, the noted fashion expert of Paris, pronounces Pierre the "greatest cook in the world." Pierre is famous as a creator of rare dishes and says he hopes to enable diners to understand what they are eating without a knowledge of French. He is planning to tell on the menu just what those high-sounding names bring you when you place an order.

"Buyers from all parts of the United States and foreign countries will come to this great central market," said Mr. Weisburg. "Merchants from the big cities and the small communities will be among the thousands who will visit this gigantic structure every day. There will be every conceivable kind of appetite to cater to, so we will have an international menu. With the five units of the restaurant we also will be able to have a price range that will meet the pocketbooks of all classes."

To Be Buying Capital of U. S.

The Mart itself, which houses more than six hundred of the outstanding manufacturers, wholesalers and importers, is destined to become the new buying capital of the United States, if not the world.

The purpose of the Mart is to bring a great community of mercantile leaders to present the latest ideas, patterns, styles, designs and colors in merchandise, developed by the world's foremost manufacturers. More than $5 per cent of the 4,000,000 square feet of display space has been leased and buyers from all parts of the country are beginning to come to this new central market.

"The Mart embodies the modern ideas of a concentrated market, of bringing the buyer to market instead of attempting by means of sample cases, traveling salesmen and trunks to inadequately take the market to the merchant," said Claude A. Welles, general manager of the Mart. "The arrangement of the display floors has been scientifically worked out with the object of conserving the buyer's time and energy to the utmost, providing every necessary aid to expedite his examination of goods and for his convenience while in the market."

27 Miles of Corridors

"The buyer can enter the Mart in the morning, attend to all his business and personal affairs during the day, and do practically all his buying without leaving the shelter of one roof until bedtime. This is a Department Store for Stores—a concentration of related lines under one roof. It will effect a revolution in distribution, will reduce the time necessary for the merchant's buying and correspondingly increase his time for selling."

Each of the eighteen display floors has sales corridors 650 feet long, a display space of around five acres veritable business boulevards. Boring on these are hundreds of lines of merchandise visible through 2 miles of windows. This great space a total of 100 acres in the entire building, makes it possible to house the selling and display activities of the many allied concerns on a single floor with related groups on adjoining floors. It is estimated that $500,000 will be the total annual sales of the Mart.

Glamour of Old Whaling Days Reflected in Story of Sea Bride

STEEL and steam and the discovery of petroleum have taken the old glamour off whaling. The leviathans of the deep are hunted today with all the machinery of modern efficiency. But in the old days it was a red-blooded man's trade fraught with incessant danger and demanding the highest order of resourcefulness and courage. It was a hard trade for men and more than often a tragic one for women. There was no wireless, not even the cable, and the average voyage of a whaling ship was from two to three years. Often nothing was heard of her again after she had set sail from Nantucket or Boston or Sag Harbor or New Bedford. Time supplied the only tidings—the certainty as she became "overdue" by a year or a space of years that she had met the fate of so many whalers and been lost with all hands.

Down To Sea on Wedding Day

Whale captains were of a hardy type—they had to be—and now and then one took his bride on one of his long voyages. In "The Sea Bride," the Ben Ames Williams' serial which will be published in this newspaper soon, the author tells the story of a girl who went down to the sea on the afternoon of her wedding day, and endured the perils and vicissitudes of an old time whaling cruise. In three years of constant danger she saw men destroyed by drink and brutality, lived amid plotting and treachery, suffered shipwreck—and, amazingly, won love and happiness.

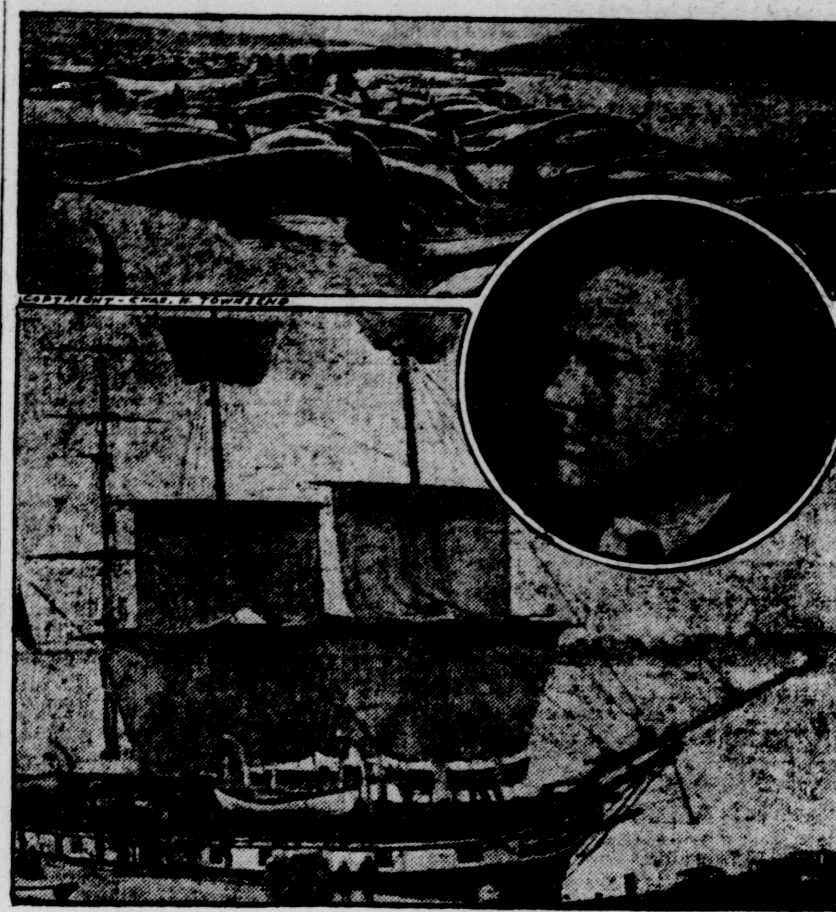

Faith Kileup, the sea bride, marries Captain Noll Wing of the "Sally Sims", as the story runs, because she admires his strength and courage though he is much older than she. Her brother is a member of the ship's crew as is Daniel Tobey, the second mate, who has been her suitor from childhood and is a man of uncertain character. She shares the small cabin of the ship with the "afterguard" and soon learns that all that is worst in men makes its appearance in the narrow world of a ship.

Were Arctic Pioneers

Her husband changes with the other men as his age begins to tell on him; his power of command slackens and he takes to drink. Drink maddens him sometimes and in a brutal fight with a member of the crew he kicks the man in the face and blinds him in one eye. Thereafter he lives in constant fear of his victim's vengeance and eventually leaps overboard and is lost.

While drink is destroying him and long before his power over his men has gone, Dan Tobey tries to undermine the faith of the captain's bride. He becomes her bitter enemy when the vessel ships a new hand who quickly becomes his rival. The story, from that point forward, deals with the course of love and its final triumph.

A whale is a vast creature and when hunted by hand, as in the old days, frequently turned on his hunters and destroyed them. A "stove boat" was common. So common that every ship's carpenter had to be a mechanic so expert that he could take the pieces of a broken boat and fit them together into a new one. Whales, charging across the face of the ocean when mad with suffering and fury, have been known to sink ships.

New novel by Ben Ames Williams (in circle), "The Sea Bride," has centered attention on the tremendous changes that have taken place in the whaling industry and robbed it of most of its old glamour and romance. Few of the old whalers are still float and almost none of them are used for whaling. A typical example of the type of whaler, the Morgan, pictured above, is anchored at South Dartmouth, Massachusetts, and used as a clubhouse. At top is an extraordinary photo of a school of whales stranded on a shore.

Whaling ships, too, hunted their prey in both the north and south polar regions and the icebergs and pack ice of the Arctic and Antarctic accounted for many which never returned to port.

On the other hand if a whaler was lucky the profits of a voyage were often so large that her captain could retire and her owners build themselves fine houses in the New England seaport towns. Whale oil now has a variety of uses, but once the world depended on whale oil for nearly all its lighting oil supply and in lean fishing years the price went high.

A Race for Fortune

A captain and crew who were lucky enough to fill a ship's hold quickly in a lean year were "sitting pretty" as we would say today. It was because of the element of risk and speculation in the industry that it drew the peculiar kind of men to it that it did. On leaving for a whaling voyage every man was on a "lay" or percentage of the ship's profits, from the captain to the cabin boy, and knew that he might come home—if he came home—either with a competence for life or completely empty handed.

In "The Sea Bride" the fortunes of the "Sally Sims" are low when they are saved by a "find" of ambergris, the substance from which perfumery is made, and which is given off by whales. Its value is $60,000 to the people of the "Sally Sims" and its finding makes one of the high points of drama in the story.

Outside of its power as a human story "The Sea Bride" will appeal to readers of this newspaper as a narrative of stirring happenings in a time which has vanished from sea history and will never come back. Today the whale is hunted by steam vessels, killed with bomb guns, and cut and boiled at shore stations that are like modern oil refineries. The romance of the industry has gone. Its only trace remains here and there in some fiction masterpiece like "The Sea Bride."

GIRL, 21, WEDS SIXTH TIME SEEKING LOVE

Tennessee Maid Is Nearing World's Record.

Memphis, Tenn.—"Pat" Theresa Barnett, twenty-one, pretty and romantic South side girl, is tied with DeWolf Hopper who has been married six times and is one up on Peggy Joyce who has had a string of only five mates.

The artful "Pat" Barnett, who divorced her fifth husband a few months ago and sought solace in suicide by poison, upon recovering from the attempted self-destruction has just been married again—her sixth appearance at the altar.

"Pat's" philosophy is: "Find happiness through marriage." "I don't know whether she'll stay with this one or not," says Mrs. George L. Barnett, 418 Gaston place, the gray-haired mother.

"But I do hope so. It's high time, 'Pat' got settled."

Not Like Mother. "Pat's" search for happiness is not the road of her mother, who with a gentle smile sits in her garden nursing dreams of her engineer-husband, who, injured in a railroad accident at Coldwater, Miss., in 1900, died from those injuries 12 years later.

"I found one good man and stuck to him," says "Pat's" mother. It was just two months ago that "Pat" emerged from a divorce court, rid of No. 5, Michael Silverman, whom she sued on grounds of nonsupport. And then she placed away for a time, swallowed a poison potion, was rushed to a hospital and when she had fully recovered her equilibrium and equanimity, said:

"Why, I was in love again. There's no use living with a man if you don't love him."

"I'm glad I didn't die when I took poison, because I've found the only one this time."

One Mate Killed. One of "Pat's" husbands was killed in an automobile accident just two days after the wedding. The other four—

"Oh, I got rid of them in divorce court," said "Pat." She keeps track of them, "just to see how they're getting along." Two are in Memphis, one is in New Orleans, and the other is in Los Angeles. She said:

"The one I got now is a perfect type."

"Well, let's hope he's permanent," said her widowed mother.

"Pat," who has taken a few beauty prizes, didn't get to finish high school. She got the matrimonial fad a few weeks before she was to receive her diploma.

Women in Montana Wear Evening Gowns of Paper

Corvallis, Mont.—What if it had rained or if there had been a wind-storm? Or what if somebody had flipped a lighted match in the wrong place?

But none of these occurred and the ingenious women of Corvallis triumphed.

Just before a library benefit, the choral leader ruled that evening gowns must be worn. Chorus members were disturbed. They were just farm women and few, if any, boasted evening dresses.

Came the night of the benefit and lo and behold, the chorus turned out resplendently attired in stylish black evening gowns that rustled audibly as the women walked towards the stage.

The secret was too good to keep. All this sartorial elegance, all this metropolitan splendor was made of nothing more nor less than plain black crepe paper.

125 MEN FIGHT FIRE ON EIGHT MILE FRONT

Forestry Men Use Dynamite in Blasting for Water to Combat Huge Blaze

TOUCHES THREE COUNTIES

Already 3840 Acres Burned Over as Situation Nears that of Northern Michigan

Using dynamite to blast for water, 125 men were fighting a fire on an eight mile front touching three counties, Aitkin, Crow Wing and Cass today as the forest fire situation reached proportions near to that which existed in Northern Michigan, E. H. Rhodes, district forest ranger, reported.

The fire broke out in the Hill City area three days ago and spread beyond the control of 50 men there. Seventy-five fire fighters from Crow Wing and Cass counties were recruited yesterday to combat the flames which are sweeping over areas of wooded country, game covers, blueberry marshes and meadows. The fire has already covered six sections for a total of 3840 acres.

Approximately 15 fires blamed to carelessness in the woods are burning in this district. A ten acre fire near Wolf Lake, Crow Wing county, was started by a youth burning out a hornet's nest.

Six lookout towers have been manned and a full quota of patrolmen placed on duty.

With the exception of the large fire to the north the other fires are being confined to restricted areas and are under control. These include:

A peat fire of 15 acres, west of Pequot, set by a man carelessly burning brush.

A peat and highland fire in Irondale township covering 20 acres.

Forty acres of peat and highland 20 miles north of Motley.

A peat fire of two and one half acres in Roosevelt township, Crow Wing county.

A three acre fire in Ft. Ripley township near Crow Wing Lake started by a motorist tossing away a live cigarette from the highway.

One hundred and sixty acres of peat and highlands which started near the Sagamore mine at Riverton.

Many of the larger fires started when people refrained from reporting them when they first started.

The law requires that all fires be reported. Mr. Rhodes stated that all fires are being checked and that several arrests and prosecutions are to be made.

The large fire to the north hits White, Elk township, Aitkin county, Beaulieu township, Cass county and Little Pine township in Crow Wing county.

"The situation is very serious. For the protection of the forests, farm lands and buildings and for the safety of people, the utmost of precaution is urged those living in vacationing there and motorists in the rural wooded areas," Mr. Rhodes said.

To aid lookout men in the towers telephone operators in rural exchanges remained on duty Sunday.

'Electric Eye' to Do Many Tasks in Home Says Arcturus Expert

Removed from the maze of technical word and phrases, charts, graphs and diagrams with which it is usually associated, the photo-electric cell, known more generally as the "electric eye," is seen to possess many features which will in time make it of exceptional value not only in industry but in the home, according to H. L. Haltermann of the Arcturus Radio Tube Company, an expert on the uses of this device and one of the technicians responsible for its development.

"Seldom has a device been developed that has such wide and diverse possibilities," says Mr. Haltermann. "One of the most useful features of the photo-electric cell will please the motorist. The electric eye may be employed to open the garage doors the moment a beam of light from the car's headlight is projected against them. Any motorist who has had to get out of his car on a rainy night and fust with the garage doors in a downpour will appreciate this use. While only a relatively few private garages have employed the electric eye for this purpose to date, the time is not far distant when every garage will have equipment of this nature installed.

"Wherever there is light, visible or invisible, there exists an application for photo-electric cells and the field of usefulness of this device is being extended rapidly from month to month."

Any motorist who has had to get out of his car on a rainy night and fust with the garage doors in a downpour will appreciate this use. While only a relatively few private garages have employed the electric eye for this purpose to date, the time is not far distant when every garage will have equipment of this nature installed.

"Wherever there is light, visible or invisible, there exists an application for photo-electric cells and the field of usefulness of this device is being extended rapidly from month to month."

As a general rule wool has the greatest attraction for coloring matters and dyes most easily. Cotton has much less attraction, while silk occupies an intermediate position. Differences are due to a certain degree to the difference in physical structure of the fibers, but mainly to different chemical composition.

RE-ROOF

The approach of fall brings thoughts of new roofs. And of course winter follows closely on the heels of fall!

No need to worry if your roof is all right.

If it isn't in good shape, there's trouble brewing—and plenty of it! Penetrating cold pours in through poor roofs. Snow melts and water seeps through to ruin walls and dispositions. It's all very costly and annoying.

Re-roof or Repair Now

The longer you neglect your roof, the greater the cost of repairs. Now it can be done for less money than at any time in the future—because the sooner you do it, the less damage or heat loss there is.

We co-operate with local contractor in helping you solve your roof problems—any kind, any time, any place.

The SEA BRIDE By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

Tang of the Sea

THE whaling ship "Sally Simms" carries Capt. Noll Wing and his youthful bride Faith on their honeymoon trip. The witchery of the sea takes away from her the man she loves and leaves in his stead a hard-bitten, hard-drinking whaling captain.

Spice of Romance

ROMANCE creeps into this situation when it was most unexpected and jealousy and suspicion add their bits to complicate the trying situation in which Faith finds herself on her honeymoon.

Pepper of Action

UNEXPECTED drama and the happy solution of Faith's predicament are brought about because sailors are a two-fisted, slugging lot, given to action rather than soft words. It is one of the reasons "The Sea Bride" has everything!

WHERE'S EMILY?

by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER XLVI.

STONE went off to the station and thence to New York, looking very much elated indeed.

But the watchers by Emily's bedside were not elated. There were moments when they thought she was really coming back to her rational senses, and then the next instant she would be screaming in hysteria.

Certain things seemed to throw her into a panic of fear.

One was tomato soup. When the nurse brought her a small bowlful for a mid-morning lunch, she flew into such a spasm of mortal terror and anguish that the frightened attendant ran from the room with it.

She returned to find Emily panting with fright and terror.

But given another sort of soup, she ate it with relish and seemed grateful.

"Yes," Doctor Eaton said, told of the incident. "She will be like that. Until we know what she has been through, we can give no explanation. But doubtless tomato soup was in some way connected with her imprisonment. Don't bring it to her again."

By afternoon Emily was more tranquil and the nurses began to feel hope of her ultimate recovery.

Betty came over but was not allowed to see her, as it might rouse memories for which the poor disordered mind was not ready.

They arranged that Betty might look into the room and catch a peep of Emily in a mirror.

But when Betty did this and Emily by chance cast her eyes toward the door, the lackluster gaze and the blank stare so frightened Betty that she fell back sobbing and despaired of Emily's ever getting better.

"Oh, Pete," she said, later, "don't tell Rodney, but I know Emily's mind is gone forever! No body could look like that and ever get over it. Why, she is mad! She can never recover."

"Now, now, Betty, don't look at it like that. Give her time. The doctors all say it may be a long siege, but they think her youth and strength will pull her through."

"Oh, I hope so, I do hope so, but I don't want to see her again while she's like that. And don't let Rodney see her. It would haunt him all his life."

Stone telephoned up that he would remain in New York overnight, and asked Pete if he had any further details for him.

But Gibby hadn't, so a period of quiet waiting settled down upon Knollwood.

The family routine went on as usual. Different ones went over and back to the hospital as they chose.

Pearl went frequently, carrying choice dishes, prepared by the Knollwood cook, which Emily ate and enjoyed.

No one was allowed to see her, but reports were willingly given, and if the more alarming phases of the case were not given out, that was better for the inquiring ones.

By Friday afternoon, the nurse proposed that they bring in Mrs. Laurence's baby in the hope of pleasantly diverting Emily's thoughts.

But to their amazement, the result was the opposite.

At sight of the child, Emily became so violently agitated as to cause deepest alarm.

The nurse, frightened and remorseful, tried to quiet her, but Emily had one of her very worst attacks of hysteria and afterward, exhausted and spent, lay moaning; "the baby—that must be the baby—and it was a long time before they could make her forget the child."

"What does it mean, Doctor?" the nurse asked, having made a clean breast of the incident.

"It means," he said, "that during the six days of her imprisonment, wherever she may have been, Miss Duane went through some severe experiences. We shall never know about it unless she recovers her mind and can tell us. But probably there was a baby or small child involved somehow, as there must have been tomato soup. Perhaps other similar matters will come up, so bring in no outside interests of any sort, for anything may stir up trouble. I think there is a little improvement, but the least thing untoward will send her off again."

So care was taken to introduce no new factor of any sort. They continued to use the foods that Emily had already accepted, and she saw no one but the attendants to whom she had become accustomed.

Stone, returning after two days, was deeply interested in the story of Emily's antipathy to the Laurence baby, and nodded his head.

"Of course," he said, as if to himself, "of course, it would be so."

But the explanation of this cryptic remark he would not give.

"Don't ask questions now," he begged of Pete, who was agog to know the detective's conclusions. "If Emily comes to herself, all will be well. If not, that is our trouble, not the police."

And then the day came when Emily did come to herself.

Doctor Eaton arriving one morning saw the light of reason in her eyes, and, hiding his elation, he spoke gently to her.

"It was Sunday now, and Emily had been four nights in the hospital, hovering between sanity and madness."

But each twenty-four hours had shown some slight improvement, and now the veil had lifted, and, whether temporary or permanent, reason was again enthroned.

"I want to go home," Emily said, looking at the doctor in a half daze.

But her voice was normal and her eyes clear and understanding.

"Yes, my dear, you can go home whenever you like."

The doctor was a little at a loss how to treat this new development, fearing to deny her anything lest the startled bird of reason take flight as suddenly as it had come.

"Now?" Emily asked, still seeming rational.

"If you'll take a nice, long nap first, you may go when you awaken," the doctor promised her, and he gave her a draught that ensured the long nap whatever was to follow.

So Emily fell into a deep sleep and when she awoke it was late afternoon.

She was refreshed and still sensible and rational.

"Now, can I go home?" she asked, and though her voice sounded small and far away, it was in no way flighty or wandering.

"I 'spect so," replied the nurse who had had her orders, and Emily was made ready for the journey.

In an ambulance again, she was taken back to Knollwood where she was met by only Aunt Judy and Pearl, the doctor not yet willing to risk the excitement of seeing Rodney.

Put to bed in her own room and again given an opiate, Emily slept quietly all night and next morning awoke almost her own old self.

"My room," she said, smiling as she patted the dainty bedclothing and looked about upon her own belongings.

"Nurse," she said at last, and the watching attendant stepped forward. "I'm a whole lot better."

"Indeed you are, Miss Duane," and the nurse spoke with glad truthfulness.

"I am not quite well yet and I shall have to rest up a little before I get up, you know."

"Yes, indeed. Now don't talk any more until you have had some breakfast."

"All right," and Emily's eyes closed and she lay very still until the ray arrived.

As she sipped her cocoa she seemed to be thinking deeply, and the nurse became anxious.

"Don't think, Miss Duane, don't try to think at present. You've lots of time ahead of you. Take it easy now. The doctor will be here soon."

"Very well," and Emily smiled again, with that strange newborn smile of hers that meant returned sanity and power of thought.

"Well, well," said Doctor Eaton, coming in. "Well, well! Very well indeed, I should say. You won't want a doctor much longer, Emily."

"No, Doctor Eaton, I don't want a doctor. I want a detective."

"Bless my soul! You want what?"

"A detective—a first-class detective."

"Too easy. That want can be supplied in a few minutes. But what do you want him for?"

"I want to tell him things. I've a lot to tell, and it must be told to the right person, to somebody who can take the whole matter in charge and do what is right and best."

"Is your memory clear, Emily?"

"Perfectly clear. I am tired, but I shall never be able to rest till I tell what I have to tell. Where's Rodney? On the sofa?"

She gave one of her old-time roguish smiles, and the doctor responded.

"I guess he is. He's there mostly, waiting for you."

"Dear Rodney. I want to see him, but—"

"But you want to get this other matter off your chest first. That is it?"

"Yes, that's it."

"Well, Emily, as you seem to realize yourself, you've been pretty ill, and you're not yet entirely well. If I give you your first-class detective right now, will you consent to a short interview and a quiet one. No sterner about, you know."

"I'll agree, and as soon as it's over, I'll rest before I ask to see Rodney."

"You're a brick, my girl, you're really a wonder. All right; fix her up, nurse, in a fetching boudoir robe and cap, or whatever the girls wear nowadays, and I'll serve up one detective."

Fashions for the Smart Woman

MISS ELLEN L. . . . Whose father owns a string of polo ponies and who is herself an ardent horsewoman, wore this costume at the recent Polo Matches at the Myopia Hunt Club at Hamilton, Massachusetts. The frock is appropriately tailored, with clever diagonal seaming that is used to introduce two inverted pleats in front. Buttoned tab details carry out the trim effect. White jersey is the novel fabric used and really quite new and striking. As a perfect complement to the costume, Miss L. wore a choker of carved yellow and brown wooden beads and sports oxfords in two shades of brown leather.

Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5338 is a replica of this frock. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

WHERE'S EMILY?

by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER XLVI.

STONE went off to the station and thence to New York, looking very much elated indeed.

But the watchers by Emily's bedside were not elated. There were moments when they thought she was really coming back to her rational senses, and then the next instant she would be screaming in hysteria.

Certain things seemed to throw her into a panic of fear. One was tomato soup. When the nurse brought her a small bowlful for a mid-morning lunch, she flew into such a spasm of mortal terror and anguish that the frightened attendant ran from the room with it.

She returned to find Emily panting with fright and terror. But given another sort of soup, she ate it with relish and seemed grateful.

"Yes," Doctor Eaton said, told of the incident. "She will be like that. Until we know what she has been through, we can give no explanation. But doubtless tomato soup was in some way connected with her imprisonment. Don't bring it to her again."

By afternoon Emily was more tranquil and the nurses began to feel hope of her ultimate recovery. Betty came over but was not allowed to see her, as it might rouse memories for which the poor disordered mind was not ready.

"They arranged that Betty might look into the room and catch a peep of Emily in a mirror."

But when Betty did this and Emily by chance cast her eyes toward the door, the lackluster gaze and the blank stare so frightened Betty that she fell back sobbing and despaired of Emily's ever getting better.

"Oh, Pete," she said, later, "don't tell Rodney, but I know Emily's mind is gone forever! Nobody could look like that and ever get over it. Why, she is mad! She can never recover."

"Now, now, Betty, don't look at it like that. Give her time. The doctors all say it may be a long siege, but they think her youth and strength will pull her through."

"Oh, I hope so, I do hope so, but I don't want to see her again while she's like that. And don't tell Rodney see her. It would haunt him all his life."

Stone telephoned up that he would remain in New York overnight, and asked Pete if he had any further details for him.

But Gibby hadn't, so a period of quiet waiting settled down upon Knollwood.

The family routine went on as usual. Different ones went over and back to the hospital as they chose.

Pearl went frequently, carrying choice dishes, prepared by the Knollwood cook, which Emily ate and enjoyed.

No one was allowed to see her, but reports were willingly given, and if the more alarming phases of the case were not given out, that was better for the inquiring ones.

By Friday afternoon, the nurse proposed that they bring in Mrs. Laurence's baby in the hope of pleasantly diverting Emily's thoughts.

But, to their amazement, the result was the opposite.

At sight of the child, Emily became so violently agitated as to cause deepest alarm.

The nurse, frightened and remorseful, tried to quiet her, but Emily had one of her very worst attacks of hysteria and afterward, exhausted and spent, lay moaning, "the baby—that must be the baby!"—and it was a long time before they could make her forget the child.

"What does it mean, Doctor?" the nurse asked, having made a clean breast of the incident.

"It means," he said, "that during the six days of her imprisonment, wherever she may have been, Miss Duane went through some severe experiences. We shall never know about it unless she recovers her mind and can tell us. But probably there was a baby or small child involved somehow, as there must have been tomato soup. Perhaps other similar matters will come up, so bring in no outside interests of any sort, for anything may stir up trouble. I think there is a little improvement, but the least thing untoward will send her off again."

No care was taken to introduce no new factor of any sort. They continued to use the foods that Emily had already accepted, and she saw no one but the attendants to whom she had become accustomed.

Stone, returning after two days, was deeply interested in the story of Emily's antipathy to the Laurence baby, and nodded his head. "Of course," he said, as if to himself, "of course, it would be so."

But the explanation of this cryptic remark he would not give. "Don't ask questions now," he begged of Pete, who was agog to know the detective's conclusions. "If Emily comes to herself, all will be well. If not, that is our trouble, not the police."

And then the day came when Emily did come to herself.

Doctor Eaton arriving one morning saw the light of reason in her eyes, and, hiding his elation, he spoke gently to her.

"How do we feel this morning, my dear?"

It was Sunday now, and Emily had been four nights in the hospital, hovering between sanity and madness.

But each twenty-four hours had shown some slight improvement, and now the veil had lifted, and, whether temporary or permanent, reason was again enthroned.

"I want to go home," Emily said, looking at the doctor in a half daze.

But her voice was normal and her eyes clear and understanding.

"Yes, my dear, you can go home whenever you like."

The doctor was a little at a loss how to treat this new development, fearing to deny her anything lest the startled bird of reason take flight as suddenly as it had come.

"Now?" Emily asked, still seeming rational.

"If you'll take a nice, long nap first, you may go when you awaken," the doctor promised her, and he gave her a draught that ensured the long nap whatever was to follow.

So Emily fell into a deep sleep and when she awoke it was late afternoon.

She was refreshed and still sensible and rational.

"Now, can I go home?" she asked, and though her voice sounded small and far away, it was in no way flighty or wandering.

"I expect so," replied the nurse.

who had had her orders, and Emily was made ready for the journey.

In an ambulance again, she was taken back to Knollwood where she was met by only Aunt Judy and Pearl, the doctor not yet willing to risk the excitement of seeing Rodney.

Put to bed in her own room and again given an opiate, Emily slept quietly all night and next morning awoke almost her own old self. "My room," she said, smiling, as she patted the dainty bedclothing and looked about upon her own belongings.

"Nurse," she said at last, and the watching attendant stepped forward. "I'm a whole lot better."

"Indeed you are, Miss Duane," and the nurse spoke with glad truthfulness.

"I am not quite well yet and I shall have to rest up a little before I get up, you know."

"Yes, indeed. Now don't talk any more until you have had some breakfast."

"All right," and Emily's eyes closed and she lay very still until the ray arrived.

As she sipped her cocoa she seemed to be thinking deeply, and the nurse became anxious.

"Don't think, Miss Duane, don't try to think at present. You've lots of time ahead of you. Take it easy now. The doctor will be here soon."

"Very well," and Emily smiled again, with that strange newborn smile of hers that meant returned sanity and power of thought.

"Well, well," said Doctor Eaton, coming in. "Well, well! Very well indeed, I should say. You won't want a doctor much longer, Emily."

"No, Doctor Eaton, I don't want a doctor. I want a detective."

"Bless my soul! You want what?"

"A detective—a first-class detective."

"Too easy. That want can be supplied in a few minutes. But what do you want with him?"

"I want to tell him things. I've a lot to tell, and it must be told to the right person, to somebody who can take the whole matter in charge and do what is right and best."

"Is your memory clear, Emily?"

"Perfectly clear. I am tired, but I shall never be able to rest till I tell what I have to tell. Where's Rodney? On the sofa?"

She gave one of her old-time roguish smiles, and the doctor responded.

"I guess he is. He's there merrily waiting for you."

"Dear Rodney. I want to see him, but—"

"But you want to get this other matter off your chest first. That it?"

"Yes, that's it."

"Well, Emily, as you seem to realize yourself, you've been pretty ill, and you're not yet entirely well. If I give you your first-class detective right now, will you consent to a short interview and a quiet one. No stammering about, you know."

"I'll agree, and as soon as he's over, I'll rest before I ask to see Rodney."

Grandmother Flies

Mrs. Joseph Hott, 80-year-old grandmother of Chicago Heights, Ill., has proved that flying should not be reserved for youth. For several years she wanted to go up in a plane but always there were objections. She achieved her ambition on Thursday, however, when she boarded a plane and flew to Columbus, O., where she will visit a niece.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

MISS ELLEN L. . .

Whose father owns a string of polo ponies and who is herself an ardent horsewoman, wore this costume at the recent Polo Matches at the Myopia Hunt Club at Hamilton, Massachusetts. The frock is appropriately tailored, with clever diagonal seaming that is used to introduce two inverted pleats in front. Buttoned tab details carry out the trim effect. White jersey is the novel fabric used and really quite new and striking. As a perfect complement to the costume, Miss L. wore a choker of carved yellow and brown wooden beads and sports oxfords in two shades of brown leather.

Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5338 is a replica of this frock. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.
